Raiders of Lost History

by BPL contributor February 17, 2012

A guest blog post by Christina Manzo, Digital Projects Intern.

Over the course of this grant project, the Boston Public Library has some of the prettiest libraries that the state has to offer. For renovated structures, I would safely boast that Massachusetts the country. So when we pulled up to a storage facility in Malden, what to expect. But if there's anything I've learned from working with interesting items in the oddest places. When we first entered the room where we could examine the collection proposed for the Boston Public Library. The boxes were pulled from a giant storage warehouse. Raiders of the Lost Ark.

Contained within was the complete, half-century run of a local magazine-format serial publication that included everything from genealogical information.
